

Timmins Daily Press

Timmins is a city in northeastern Ontario on the Mattagami River. At the time of the Canada 2006 Census, Timmins' population was 42,997. At 2,961.52 square kilometres (1,143 sq mi), Timmins was Canada's largest municipality in land area until 1995, when the regional municipality of Wood Buffalo, Alberta, was created, although it remained the largest municipality in Ontario until 2001, when it was superseded by the newly amalgamated cities of Kawartha Lakes and Greater Sudbury. It is the 69th largest metropolitan area in Canada, although the statistical boundaries for Timmins' metropolitan area coincide with its municipal boundaries.

Circulation

Monday	7,379
Tuesday	7,382
Wednesday	7,619
Thursday	7,849
Friday	16,551
Saturday	7,682

Readership

Weekday	16,300
Saturday	14,600
6 Day CUME	24,500
Weekly Print/Online	25,600

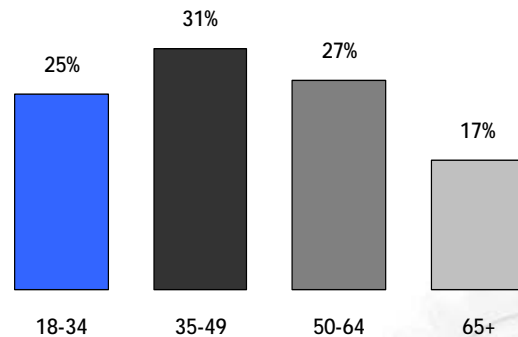

Special Features

Name
Weddings
Healthy Living
Car Care

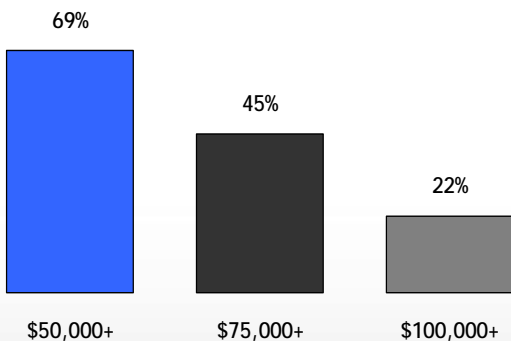

Demographic Highlights

- 61% are adults 25-54
- 52:48 male to female
- 63% are married/living together
- 56% have some post secondary ed. plus

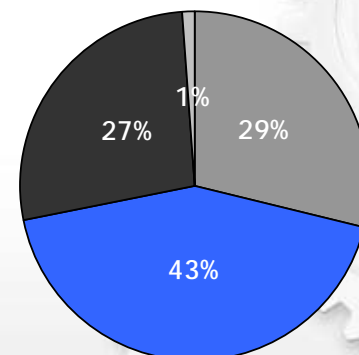

Age

Household Income

Occupation

- Managers/Professionals
- Blue Collar
- Other White Collar
- Other